I don't think we're in Kansas any-

It is two hours before the kickoff of the 1992 Nebraska-Kansas State game. And it is already unlike any Big Red-Fighting Purple game I've ever seen. If only I could see it.

Somewhere down on the field seemingly miles away from the seats — the Texas Southern University band is performing, with four mem-bers standing in front of microphones singing to the crowd like the Tempta-

Welcome to Samurai Football. You come to a rock show, and a football

Lonely KSU Stadium, the little house on the prairie, seems far, far

Maybe it's the Sushi vendors, but it's just not the same.

I miss getting up Saturday morning and driving down old two-lane Highway 77, through Beatrice, Neb., and then Marysville, Kan. — past the cornfields and porch swings.

Box Lunches

I miss going down to Aggieville, near the KSU campus in Manhattan, Kan., for some pre-game barbecue at The Last Chance.

Instead, we bopped on over to the concession stand, where they're serving box lunches (with unidentified green contents) for 1,300 yen and Cokes for 500 yen. And then there's the corn puffs you can buy with a guy on the box eating corn on the cob. Just to make Nebraskans feel at home.

I even miss KSU Stadium, the Big I even miss KSU Stadium, the Big Eight's resident junior-college sta-dium, with the old corn field across the street. Typically, Nebraskans fill up half of KSU's stadium with red. Not here. For this game, the few hundred Nebraskans here were se-questered in a corner of the Tokyo Dome — much like the visiting fans in Memorial Stadium — although they do have help.

A hundred or so Japanese natives dressed in red Nebraska shirts sat in front of the real Nebraskans, waving "Beat Kansas State" signs on cue. Japanese for Nebraska?

posts back to Aggieville?

No Big Eight champion has ever been decided like this, with Keith-Jackson snoring somewhere back in the United States.

No official invite from the Orange No official invite from the Orange Bowl types, who decided to skip this game. Not even a phone call from Miami, Fla., where it will be 2:30 a.m. when their Big Eight champion is decided in the Tokyo Dome, otherwise known as the "Big Egg."

But the Huskers didn't lay a big egg.
While Husker fans here spent the week touring and tasting Japan, Ne-braska Coach Tom Osborne has been quietly stewing about everything from buses running on time to the pre-game and halftime pageantry of this game. How well the Huskers—and Osborne - handled their blood pressure figured to be a key.

An Event

There were at least 50,000 Japanese who couldn't have cared less.

They were there to see an event. A Japanese sports happening. The atmosphere almost resembled a Super Bowl, with the teams marching in from opposite ends of the dome through a tunnel of red, white and blue balloons.

The Texas Southern band played both fight songs — continuously throughout play — as the Japanese cheered for either team, waving purple or red pompons, depending on which color was placed at their seat.

Amazingly, Nebraska cheerleaders got one sector of Japanese to chant Please turn to Page 4, Col. 3

The sellout crowd at Ak-Sar-Ben gave the Omaha Lancers what they deserved Saturday night after their 5-2 victory over Thunder Bay.

A thunderous ovation.

The win before 5,908 — the 64th straight sellout at Ak-Sar-Ben — boosted Omaha back into a tie for third place with Des Moines in the 10-team United States Hockey League. The Lancers are 12-7 and have 26 points, eight behind league-leading Dubuque and four behind second-place Thunder Bay.

The win was a sweet one for the Lancers, who avenged a pair of recent road losses to the defending league champions

Omaha will ride the momentum into a 7:05 home game tonight against Sioux City, a 9-3 winner Saturday over St. "This was a big win for us," Omaha Coach Mike Guentzel said, "We played hard, and we played gritty."

The average annual value will be at least $7,166,667, making Bonds the highest-paid player in baseball, a spot previously held by Chicago Cubs second baseman Ryne Sandberg at $7.1 million.

The deal was astounding not only for its size, but for the team that agreed to it. The Giants are in the process of being sold from Bob Lurie to a group headed by Safeway Inc. Chairman Peter Magowan. The sale is slated for approval by owners during the winter meetings, but Magowan's people already are running the team and making contractual com-mitments even though they don't legally

Tide Holds Off Florida, Awaits Voters' Decision

Birmingham, Ala. (AP) — Alabama has done everything it can. Now it's up to the voters. After edging Florida 28-21 in the first Southeastern Conference championship game Saturday, the second-ranked Crimson Tide must wait until this morning to be assured of a chance to play top-ranked Miami for the national championship.

Alabama, 12-0, is going to the Sugar Bowl and expects to play 11-0 Miami on Jan. 1. But under the new bowl coalition system, that matchup won't happen un-less the Tide stays ahead of No. 3 Florida State in today's final regular-season Associated Press poll.

If 10-1 Florida State passes Alabama and moves up to No. 2, the Seminoles will play Miami in the Fiesta Bowl and the Tide probably will play No. 5 Notre Dame in the Sugar Bowl. "That did not even enter my mind,"

Alabama Coach Gene Stallings said. 'We're an undefeated football team and we've played a lot of tough teams. Yeah,

The AP poll will be released this morning at about 9:30 CST. The bowl coalition will announce its bowl pairings afterward.

The AP vote could be close because voters might compare Alabama's narrow win over No. 12 Florida with Florida State's 45-24 rout of the Gators last week. On the other hand, Florida State has a loss — and it was to Miami 19-16 on Oct. 3.
